

The logo for the Society of Technical Communication (STC) features the letters "STC" in a bold, white, serif font, centered within a solid black rectangular background.

Effective Communication— Make it your career.

Become a Technical Communicator.

If you have talents in writing, web design, graphic arts, marketing, and media, then technical communication could be the profession for you. Find out more from the Society of Technical Communication (STC). Its 25,000 members worldwide include writers, editors, content developers, illustrators, instructional designers, academics, information architects, Web designers, developers, translators, and many more who are interested in making technical information understandable and accessible. Student memberships are available. Find out more at www.stc.org.

The George Hayhoe Award: Recognizing Exceptional Student Publications

Each fall, South Carolina Midlands Chapter sponsors a technical publications competition for college students. The winning entry receives the George Hayhoe Award, a plaque, and a $100 cash award. For more information, click on the competitions link at www.stc-sc.org.

Come to a meeting of the STC SC Midlands Chapter.

Visit us at www.stc-sc.org.

We'd love to communicate with you.